This document will give an overview of the features currently functional in v0.1.alpha and document the planned features for v0.2.alpha.

Current Features

The following features are available in PocketAlchemy v0.1.alpha.

- User should be able to create recipe with title, subtitle, and description.
- User should be able to edit their recipes.
- User should be able to log in anonymously and have their data persist.

Planned Features

PocketAlchemy v0.2.alpha is planned to have the following features available.

- User should be able to view a recipe's details in a distinct view from editing a recipe. Without the ability to edit the recipe, the view should present a more streamlined view of the recipes details.
- A user should be able to navigate to edit a recipe from a read only view of that recipe's details.
- User should be able to filter their recipes by all fields currently implemented in recipe model.

- User can add ingredients to recipes, with information of ingredient name and quantity.
